

City of Morro Bay November Information

City enhancing ways we share information, receive feedback

The challenge for any community government that truly believes in making sure it's a government of, by, and for the People is to make sure that those people have a say.

We're working hard to enhance how we share information with you, and how you can give feedback to us, ask questions or seek help. Here's a sneak peak at some new efforts:

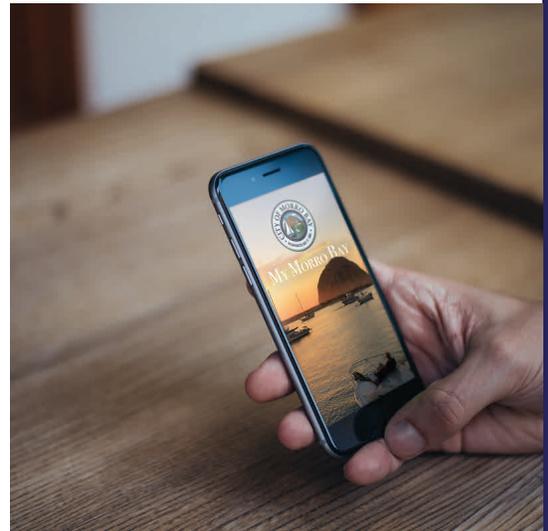

New Website: We want to make sure that the City website is the community's knowledge repository for all things about their local government. It should be simple to use and easy to find the information you're looking for. We've been working since June to build a fully renovated website that will be easier to navigate. We also want the website to be a sort of community gathering place. People can contact us about events and we will share them directly on the website's new community calendar. The site will also be much easier to use on a smartphone or tablet. We're aiming to launch the first weeks of November. Keep an eye out at www.morro-bay.ca.us.

The new City of Morro Bay Website launches in early November, and will include a community calendar.

My Morro Bay/Service Requests: While our current website has "Let Us Know" to share feedback, ask questions or make comments, it's not the most functional system. We're working to bring you My Morro Bay, a smartphone app and new website service request system that will allow you to easily snap a photo around the community of a pothole, or fallen tree limb, and then send it to staff to make the fix. Community members will get direct updates about their request, including an automated phone call if they ask for one. We hope to have this system go live with the launch of the new website.

Social Media: Finally, we'd encourage folks to participate on our social media feeds on Facebook and Twitter. On January 2, the City's Facebook page had 215 "likes," or people who received status updates. As of October 12, some 1,254 people have liked the page. We want to create a place for healthy, respectful community conversation. Join us at the links below!

The new My Morro Bay app will allow community members to notify us of issues from any location in the City.
